For the Cynthiana News,
"DREAMS."

BY ANNIE H. EDWARDS.

Oh there are moments, where the soul
Entrance in roscate dreams,
Takes not the past, no future knows,
It bathed in sunlight gleams,
Rises above all earthly thoughts,
No care, no sorrow feels,
Bogged up by faith, led on by hope,
In God's own presence, kneels.
Soft music floats on perfumed air,
And forms in bright array,
Who closed their eyes on earthly night,
And woke in heavenly day,
Stretch out their arms, to welcome home,
The loved one, lost but found,
And gentle words, and fond caress,
The drooping head have crown'd.
Could we sleep on, how sweet 'twould be,
And never, never wake,
But dream must end the soul arise,
And up its burden take,
For life itself, when at its best,
Is but a short, sad night,
And soon, oh God be thanked, will fade,
Before the morning's light.
Then let us dream; our fleeting dreams
Last but a little while,
And serve, while trav'ling on thro' life,
Some sorrows to beguile.
Ere long, our blinded eyes shall see
The hidden mystery,
And bathed in light, the soul shall live,
Throughout eternity.

SPEECH OF A. H. WARD.

The following account of a speech by Harry Ward, at Georgetown, last court day, we take from the Louisville Courier:

"Mr. Ward commenced by thanking his friends for the kind terms in which they had been pleased to speak of him, but thought it was hardly necessary that he should be introduced to a Scott audience—that he had the pleasure of addressing these people before—that two years ago he addressed them from this same stand in support of George B. McClellan, the Democratic candidate for the Presidency and he was here to-day to ridicule the same party and the same principles he then did, and he was sorry to see that some gentlemen who were then with him, and stood by him heart and soul, were now absent, who had, as he understood, suddenly become alarmed at Democrats and democracy, and run off and deserted their colors.

The speaker then gave a running political history of himself. He had been born and raised a Whig in the strictest class school—that he had been taught and educated to believe that the preservation of the American Union was the palladium of all our hopes and liberties. That when secession commenced, he had opposed it with all his ability and influence, and had even favored the war as a means necessary and indispensable, as he then thought, to the preservation of the objects of his political hopes; but with the distinct understanding that the war was to be prosecuted for the purpose alone of "maintaining the supremacy of the Constitution, and to preserve the Union" with all the dignity, equality and the rights of the States unimpaired."

It was a painful fact, however, to be compelled to state that this distinct pledge, made in the most solemn manner by the Federal Government, had been most grossly violated by Mr. Lincoln and his minions. He had, however, fought them at every step in their crusade on the Constitution and the reserved rights of the States; but had, however, stood by the Union, believing that there would be virtue, intelligence and patriotism enough left in the country to correct the outrages and abuses and inroads which had been made by the Abolition fanatics on the Constitution of the country.

But now that the war is over, here these expectations of the true Union men of the country been realized?—What do you see in Washington? The Federal Government virtually in the hands of an unscrupulous unprincipled, fanatical Abolition mob styling themselves a Congress, who were striving by all their power and devilish ingenuity to change our whole form of government, and if the people do not come promptly and vigorously to the work the last vestige of civil liberty will be swept from this continent.

The present is a momentous period in the history of the country; it was never in so much danger as now; "and" said he, "I repeat, every patriot must come bravely up to the work and do or die for his country."

This is no time to be carping and cavilling about past political differences, and trying to form new political organizations. There are but two political parties in the country—the great National Democracy, as organized in the North, and the Radical Jacobins, headed by Chase, Sumner, Stevens & Co.,—and the effort to organize a new political party in Kentucky is but practically giving aid and comfort to our common enemy, the Radicals.

THE CYNTHIANA NEWS.

VOL. XII.

CYNTHIANA, KY., JULY 19, 1866.

NO. 19.

The voters of our State must join the one or the other of the two existing organizations.

It has been said by some of our conservative friends that the 1st of May Convention was a rebel convention, gotten up to reorganize the rebel Democracy in the State and proscribe Union men; and yet, strange to say, that there is not one of them that has been able to point out in a single objection to the platform adopted or the candidate placed upon it, unless it is because he had to flee from the disgraceful military persecution that was inaugurated in our State a few years ago. A purer and loftier patriot, and one of higher qualifications of head and heart than Alvin Duvall, is not to be found in the land; I have known him long and intimately.

But, said the speaker, there are no valid objections to the 1st of May Convention and its nominees, as my Conservative friends urge. There is no rebellion in the country except that which the Radicals are waging against the Constitution, therefore, there are no rebels now except the Radicals, and they must be whipped with bullets as we whipped the secessionists with bullets. He went on further to say that he was the steadfast friend of popular government, and if the people of Kentucky wanted to elect a secessionist, they had a right to do so, and in the name of God, let them do it if they wanted to. He would trust a secessionist, who had come, laid down his arms, and sworn allegiance to the government, any time before a radical abolitionist.

All the present difficulties, said the distinguished speaker, which now exist between the Conservatives and Democrats might and would have been better if both had gone into the 1st of May Convention and they ought to have done. He had urged his friends in Frankfort and elsewhere as far back as last winter to go in for a State Convention, and he was now satisfied that if his counsels, and those who agreed with him, had prevailed, all parties and factions in the State would now be an unit as against the radical, and such a majority as we would give in August next, would be unknown in the previous history of the State.

GRAND MASS CONVENTION IN CAMPBELL COUNTY, KY.

The largest meeting of the voters of Campbell, ever held in the county, assembled at Alexandria, on Monday, the seventh day of May, 1866, in pursuance of a call of the Executive Committee to nominate candidates for county offices for the Democratic Conservative party. At an early hour might have been seen large crowds of people from all parts of the county, wending their way to Alexandria. From Newport and Jamestown there came a large procession of omnibuses, carriages and other vehicles, covered with flags, mottoes and other insignia, and filled with voters, one of which vehicles, was a boat on wheels, a conspicuous object in the procession—all moving along under the stirring strains of the splendid brass band from Jamestown.

Long before the hour of meeting, the streets of Alexandria were thronged with an enthusiastic people, and many men composing the bone and sinew of the county, were seen who had not attended political meetings for years. It was, in short, a glorious and harmonious outpouring of the people.

The meeting was first called to order in the Court-house, but not one-fourth of the people could be crowded into it, and it was adjourned to the public square.

Colonel George R. Fearsons was chosen President, Leo Tibbatts Secretary, and James T. Berry and Robert Murnan Assistant Secretaries.

On motion of J. R. Hallam, a committee was appointed to report rules for the government of the convention and the chair named as said committee, J. R. Hallam, James M. McArthur, H. K. Raceford, John H. Nelson, O. M. De Courcy, Samuel McIntosh and Doctor John C. Beck.

The Committee reported the following rules, which were unanimously adopted:

1. All candidates submitting their names to this convention, and all persons participating in the same, shall be understood to have pledged themselves to stand by the ticket nominated.

2. When but one person is named for any office the nomination may be made by acclamation.

3. Where more than one person may be named for any office, a poll shall be opened, and those participating in the convention, and intending to support its nominees, shall be entitled to vote at said poll, but no one shall be nominated for any office unless he obtain a majority of all the votes polled.

4. The chairman shall appoint a committee to conduct said poll, and in case there should not be a choice for any office it shall be reported to the convention, and another poll opened for all except the hindmost candidate, until a choice be made.

5. All persons to be voted for shall be named to the convention before the poll is opened.

J. R. HALLAM,
J. M. McARTHUR,
S. McINTOSH,
JOHN C. BECK,
JOHN H. NELSON,
H. K. RACEFORD.

Nominations then being in order, the following were made without opposition and by acclamation:

For Sheriff—John Schwartz.
For Circuit Court Clerk—Benjamin Beall.

For Jailor—Henry Hamilton.

For the offices of County Court Judge, County court clerk, county Attorney, Assessor, coroner and surveyor, there being several candidates named for each office, it was found impossible, on account of time and the extent of the meeting, to make selections of candidates. Whereupon on motion of Colonel Thomas L. Jones it was

Resolved, That the nominations for other county offices than those this day selected be postponed until Monday, the 4th day of June, 1866, and at that time a convention of delegates, to be chosen by the Democrats and Conservatives of the several voting precincts of this county, shall meet to choose the other candidates on the county ticket, and it is recommended to the people of the several precincts to meet on Saturday, the 2d day of June, to choose delegates.

The platform of the Louisville Convention of May 1, 1866, was read to the convention, when J. R. Hallam, Esquire, moved the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we hereby adopt and ratify the platform of principles adopted by the Democratic Convention which met in Louisville on the 1st day of May 1866.

Resolved, That we heartily ratify and endorse the nomination of Arvin Duvall, of Scott county, as a candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, and knowing the map, and appreciating his high character and ability, we will use every effort to secure his triumphant and overwhelming election to that office. We are assured by the thorough acquaintance of the people of this county with him that his name will greatly add to the strength of the county ticket.

Resolved, That having full confidence in the principles, ability and personal popularity of William E. Arthur, Esq., we hereby ratify his nomination for Judge of the Criminal Court of this judicial district, and place his name on our ticket with assurance that it will contribute largely to our success.

Then the following resolution was read by the chair, and adopted unanimously:

Resolved, That we recommend Col. Thomas L. Jones, our fellow-citizen of this county, as a fit person to represent the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky in the Congress of the United States, and we recommend to our brethren throughout the district his nomination for that position.

Colonel Jones returned his thanks to the convention for the compliment saying that as there was no vacancy now, he was not a candidate for the position. He regarded the resolution as simply a means of compliment from his fellow-citizens of Campbell for which he was profoundly grateful.

William E. Arthur, Esq., Democratic candidate for Judge of the Criminal Court, being present and called upon, addressed the meeting with his characteristic ability and eloquence.

On motion, the proceedings of the convention were ordered to be published in the Cincinnati Enquirer and Volksfreund, and the Democratic papers of Louisville and throughout the State of Kentucky.

Colon Burwell Rhet, a well known politician of South Carolina, and a distinguished member of Congress, was shot on the 4th of July, while going to his plantation at Charleston. He was killed by a discharge from a double-barrel shot-gun. It is supposed the murderer was a negro, who had made threats against his family.

[From the Louisville Courier.]
DIXON, WEBSTER CO., June 29, 1866.

The eminent and distinguished gentlemen named below, addressed the voters of Webster county, at Dixon, on the fourth Monday of June, on State and National politics. The scope of their several speeches was, that our Constitutional form of government is imperilled by the reckless ambition and mad fanaticism of the dominant majority in the fragmentary Congress, and with it the Union and those inalienable rights of the people which the Constitution was made to preserve. Of this, the history of that party and its reckless, unconstitutional and tyrannic legislators, are proof, as manifest as the sun in the heavens.

The only organized party opposed to these fanatical conspirators against the Government and the people, is the Democratic, and it is worse than folly to attempt the organization, in Kentucky, of a pretended Union party, hostile to the Democratic party. At best, the success of such a party would now give aid and comfort to the enemies of the country, while in the next national contest it would have to enlist under the Democratic banner in opposition to those it had strengthened or throw itself into the arms of the Northern traitors. In the one event, the people of Kentucky would have been united, and in the other betrayed.

We take pleasure in submitting a literal report of NON-JOHN YOUNG BROWN'S EULOGY ON COL. SAM. F. JOHNSON.

MY FELLOW-CITIZENS: This region of our own State was lorded over by an imposter and hypocrite in religion, and a cruel upstart and despot in war, who, I imagine, was never in battle-line. He is a boastful and blatant poltroon, who once "stole the liver of heaven to serve the devil in," and in his brief, but atrocious, military career, "played such fantastic tricks before high heaven as made the angels weep"—weep, not for him, but for the many victims of his savage ferocity—for neither heaven, nor hell, nor man, could shed a tear for him the despised miscreant.

Armed with his brief authority, this ass, in the lion's skin, bullied the timid, outraged the powerless and strutted in this region the dreadful, dreaded and bloody satrap, in a cause to which he was a burning and damning disgrace. He blackened his soul, if it were not before a midnight of guilt, with innumerable villanies of rapine and pillage, for which he made his counterfeit patriotism an apology; and with the murder of brave men, before whose steady look, if unprotected by bayonets, his "lily livered" craven heart would have jumped to his mouth. And him, this devilish human or inhuman devil, this loathsome wretch and rinderpest beast, this miniature Haynau, I here denounce; referring to him to point my argument as I would to a skunk to give you an idea of stinks.

For his crimes he should wear the shirt of Nessus, roll the stone of Sisyphus, haunted by the ghosts of his murdered victims—thirst for sympathy among men, as Fantulus, for a drop of the wave in which he stood, while the memory of his blood-guiltiness, more torturing than the Prometheus vulture, should prey on his villainous heart forever.

Asps, spiders, adders and tarantulas would find a congenial home in his bosom, and its atmosphere would intensify their venom. He is a moral leper, to be shunned by men—a miserable reptile, sipping his poison wherever cupidity or hate directs—a bloated butcher an outlaw from society—a stinking evil upon earth, and he will be a nuisance in hell. One year ago this creature causelessly imprisoned me and subjected me to the indignity of his armed guards. I feel humiliated to notice him, but empowered by ushers and tyrants, he wronged me and my country—had his artillery warring at our polls to frighten away voters, and played the master of thousands of freeborn men. But he held a barren sceptre in his grasp." Henderson moved, and voted the banner vote of the Second Congressional District in defiance of the tyrant. This is the picture of Samuel F. Johnson, ex-Colonel of the Seventeenth Kentucky Cavalry, and member of the 30th of May Convention, drawn by a hand that does not boast artistic skill, but guarantees only rough resemblances. I here forever dismiss this devil. His political associates and admirers may make the most of him.

The sentiment of the speeches was applauded to the echo, and the party may be assured that Webster will give a good account of herself on the first Monday in August.

THE NEWS

The representative in Congress from this district has resigned his seat and been appointed Governor to some Western Territory. The Governor of this State should have, (if he has not,) issued a proclamation, authorizing the election of a successor.

The radical Congress, familiarly known as the "Rump," has at last concluded to adjourn. The 23rd day of July is the time agreed upon by a caucus held by the radicals. We presume the great heat of the weather is the chief cause which has induced that body to withdraw their services in behalf of the country. It is a great calamity, that the thermometer ranges so high during the dog-days, for one or two more propositions, emanating from Sumner, Stevens and Co., to amend the Constitution, would have saved the Democratic party a great deal of labor, which will be rendered necessary by the early adjournment of Congress.

The colored bar-keepers, who have been dispensing "congress-water," &c., at cheap rates, in the lobbies of the Capitol, for the accommodation of members, probably, have exhausted their stock, and that would necessitate an immediate adjournment—especially, if the "old man" at the other end of the avenue has intimated his intention to put the force of his veto upon the bill proposing to increase the salary, mileage, &c., of members. We have but one thing to add, after bidding good-by to the "Rump" concern, and that is, that they may be granted a safe journey home, with the prospect of remaining there.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.—A series of battles between the Prussian and Austrian forces, was fought, commencing on the 26th of last month, and culminating in a complete victory to the Prussian arms on the 3rd day of July.

The decisive battle, which resulted in a most disastrous rout to the Austrians, it appears from the dispatches, was fought and won by the Prussian army, on the afternoon of the 3rd, at Ladawa, a small village in Bohemia.

From the accounts thus far received, it must have been one of the bloodiest and most decisive victories of modern times. The Austrians lost about fifteen thousand in prisoners alone, and one hundred and sixteen cannons, besides a vast number of small arms, and much of their ammunition and equipage. The total loss of the Austrians, since the opening of the campaign, cannot fall far short of fifty thousand, while the losses of the Prussians, too, must be enormous.

Immediately after the battle of the 3rd, the Austrian Field-marshal sent a dispatch to the King of Prussia, requesting an armistice, and made a proposition to the Emperor Napoleon accepting his mediation in behalf of Austria.

If the French Emperor should fail to effect a settlement between the belligerent parties, Prussia will follow up her advantage gained on the bloody field of Ladawa, and dictate at the gates of Vienna a peace upon terms to suit herself.

DIED.—On Wednesday afternoon, in Paris, George Morgan, a colored barber aged fifty-five years, a native of Bourbon county. George was a dwarf in size, and for many years has been what is called an institution in Paris. He was kind, amiable, polite and a most popular barber. His good conduct gathered around him the most kind and gentle affection of his numerous friends, who lament his death and cherish his memory.

Clark the eloquent town-crier, is also dead.—[Paris Kentuckian, 12th.]

President Johnson has granted 12,381 political pardons since his accession to office. To avoid the importunities of pardon brokers, he has now directed that henceforth pardons shall be delivered only to the applicants themselves. In the case of absence, their pardons will be forwarded to them through the Governor of their State.

AN IMPERIAL PRINTER.—The young French Prince Imperial has asked his father to permit him to learn the art of printing. Accordingly, a miniature press has been erected in the Tuilleries, and a printer selected to initiate the young gentleman into the mysteries of the art. The French opposition, upon these facts being made public, have naively suggested that the future ruler of France be taught the advantages of a free press.

The Democrats and Conservatives of Kenton, Boone and Grant counties had a glorious love-feast at Snyder's woods, twenty-three miles from Covington, on the Covington and Lexington turnpike, on Saturday, July 14. The crowd was variously estimated at from 2,000 to 3,000 persons.

The meeting was organized by calling S. C. Sayers, Esq., to the chair, and appointing A. C. Ellis Secretary.

Colonel William E. Artler, of Covington, made the opening speech. He spoke for at least two hours and a half, and during the whole time, though the weather was intensely hot, was listened to with breathless attention. It would be doing injustice to Mr. A. to attempt to give even an outline of his mighty effort upon this occasion in the limited space allotted to us here. It was one of the most powerful and convincing arguments in favor of a free press, free speech, and the sanctity of the ballot-box, ever delivered in Northern Kentucky. It was a scathing rebuke to the wicked and unscrupulous factions of the North, in their efforts to overthrow the Constitution of our country and establish a military despotism.

He fully showed, by documentary evidence, that Lincoln, Wade, Chase and Sumner, and many other leaders of the Radicals, who were attempting to identify the Democracy with secession, were themselves but a few years ago advocates of the right of a State to withdraw from the Federal Union, and to nullify an act of Congress which it deemed unconstitutional.

Able and eloquent speeches were also delivered by Hon. A. H. Ward, of Harrison; Colonel T. L. Jones, of Campbell; Judge O. P. Hogan, of Grant; and Hon. John W. Menzies and John P. Harrison, Esq., of Kenton. It was undoubtedly the largest and most enthusiastic political gathering ever held in Kenton County, and from the deep anxiety and interest manifested upon the occasion, it would be safe to conclude that Kenton County will roll up a Democratic majority in the coming election of not less than seven hundred.—[Cincinnati Enquirer of July 17th.]

New York, July 13.—The Herald's Washington dispatch contains the following:

A prominent citizen of Missouri, and an old friend of Mr. Johnson, called yesterday at the White House, with Thomas E. Noel, in relation to the peculiar political condition of the State of Missouri.

The object of these gentlemen was to apprise the President of the fact that Gov. Fletcher and the Radicals of the State had boldly threatened to carry the coming election by force of arms, and that they were organizing militia and their secret leagues for that purpose. They stated that arms were being shipped to different parts of the State and that an effort would be made to send companies of Radical militia, commanded by appointees of Governor Fletcher, with negro troops, into the large Conservative counties for the purpose of detaining the people from voting or forcing them to vote the Radical ticket. In self-protection they asked the President whether he intended that Gov. Fletcher, McNeil and others like them should have control of the military department, and whether the people were to be left to the mercy of Gov. Fletcher's military and negro troops. The President replied, that without intending any political issue, with Fletcher, he would see the people were protected in full and free enjoyment of their civil and political rights.

Mr. Noel then said: But suppose, Mr. President, that the citizens of any county apply to the commander of the district or department and he refuses to interfere for their protection?

Then apply to the Secretary of War, replied the President.

But our people will not apply to him, said Noel.

Then apply to me, said the President. It is the duty of the Executive to protect all citizens of the United States from violent interference while in the enjoyment of their rights as citizens.

VALLANTINISM TO SPEAK IN KENTUCKY.—The Democracy of Fleming county will have a grand Mass Meeting and Picnic at Flemingsburg on the 24th. A number of distinguished men have been invited to attend. Hon. C. L. Vallandigham has written a letter, accepting the invitation.

We had a call on yesterday from W. J. Lusk, Esq., the talented Representative from old Garrard in the Kentucky Legislature. He is a veteran in the contest waged by the Conservatives of Kentucky to keep our noble State from the grasp of the Radicals.—[Dunville Advocate]
